He is so confident of his success, that he has agreed to pay for all that is not good; and as a careful person will accompany the Captain, who is a very honest man, there can be no danger of adulteration in the passage.

The whole has been brewed since the 20th of October last, and the beer will be fit for use in a fortnight, and the ale in three days after landing.—Those who dread sea of the last crop, prefer it to any they ever drank.

RUN away from the subscriber, in Amelia county, in August last, a Mulatto man named Sam, about 35 years old, 5 feet 7 or 8 inches high, very well made, and is branded on each cheek with the letters I R, which form a sort of a scar. Whoever takes up and secures the said slave so that I get him again, or delivers him to me, or to Mr. Henry Randolph, in Chesterfield, shall have THREE POUNDS reward.

3 JOHN RANDOLPH.

Mr. RIND,

IT is ſaid, I think by Bacon, that to be envied, is a tax which merit pays to the public: The rewards that generally attend a ſuperior degree of merit, creating uneaſineſs and diſcontent in diſtorted and ungenerous minds; filling them with ſecret regret at their own defects; and leading them to growl at its ſplendour, as dogs are known to bark at the moon, when in the full diſplay of her mid-night glory.

The truth of this obſervation we are confirmed in almoſt by daily experience; of which the letter in the Supplement of the Gazette publiſhed by Meſſ. Purdie and Dixon the 9th of this month is a flagrant inſtance. The author of that letter, under the pretence of giving a tranſlation of, or paraphraſe on, a few lines of Virgil, has impoſed upon the public the moſt inflammatory low lived ſcurrility, that ever gratified the foes of virtue, or the opponents of power, wherever lodged, or however executed for the public good.

Had this poor ſcholar taken a fable out of Æſop, or tranſcribed a page from Robinſon Cruſoe, it would have bore the name of a paraphraſe with as much propriety, more morality, and public utility, than that virulent production of perſonal pique; that unparallelled compoſition of inſult upon a perſonage, more noble by his virtues than his title.

I ſhall attempt nothing here in vindication of honour outraged; not only becauſe we are left to conjecture who are meant by theſe tools of the Miniſtry dignified with titles, and who are illiberally ſuppoſed to be K—gs, notwithſtanding their ſounding appellations; but becauſe every day's conduct of our rulers muſt fill the heart of every moderate and virtuous Virginian with the utmoſt abhorrence and deteſtation for ſuch an infamous libeller.

But where a private character is ſneered at, and ridiculed by name; and where twenty reſpectable perſonages are wounded through his ſides, this calls aloud for the avenging laſh of a quill armed with ſcorpions; ſince there is no law provided againſt ſuch enemies of the public tranquillity, and nothing ſhort of this can be a puniſhment adequate to the crime of wounding the reputation of a Clergyman, and endeavouring to rob him of the affections of all with whom he is connected.

——————He who filches from me my good name
Robs me of that, which not enricheth him
And makes me poor indeed——————
Shakeſpear.

As for the moral conduct of this Gentleman, it is ſo unexceptionable, that, with all the qualities of an aſſaſſin who ſtabs in the dark, this ſham tranſlator had not effrontery enough to attack him in that point. But literary abilities, being what there is ſeldom an occaſion to diſplay, and what few people are judges of, theſe muſt be calculated from his refuſing to give a ſpirited tranſlation of a few lines of Virgil; or rather a paraphraſe dictated by the ſpirit of rage and ſedition; and that when called upon by an ironically inſolent anonymous.

The drooping ſtate of literature in the college, is alſo attributed to the want of abilities in the Preſident; and this only to impoſe upon people who are unacquainted with ſeminary œconomy: For thoſe who know the nature of colleges, muſt be convinced that many have flouriſhed under very ignorant heads, whilſt others have declined, though governed by the moſt ſhining abilities. The number of ſtudents and progreſs of literature amongſt them, depending, as is very obvious to ſee, upon the care, aſſiduity, and abilities of the tutors, under whom they are immediately placed; and of whom the head was never one in any college that I know of.

The latter part of the letter is ſo completely fooliſh, that I ſhall take no notice of it. To prevent, however, any bare ſurmiſe that this has been wrote by the Preſident, in his own behalf, I ſhould ſubſcribe my name without diſguiſe; but as I expect to be treated dirtily by this dirty writer, I ſhall reſerve the liberty of paying him in his own coin, without riſquing the character of a Gentleman:

For he who deals with ſcrubs, muſt quit Apollo's lyre,
As he who handles grubs, muſt rake in dirt and mire.

Yours,

SNAP-SHORTO-DE-TESTE.

Mr. RIND,

IT is well known to thoſe who have had occaſion to reſurvey land, that from ſome cauſe not eaſily explained, the compaſs in following an ancient line, though running the ſame nominal courſe with ſuch line, will, more or leſs, according to the difference of time, preſs to the right; by which means the boundary of lands, where ſuch boundary is artificial, and cannot be proved, is continually changing, and many perſons not only turned out of houſes and eſtates actually their property, but often ruined by expenſive law ſuits. That this evil really exiſts, none I believe will deny; many know it experimentally: And I may venture to ſay it will increaſe as long as the preſent mode of ſurveying ſubſiſts. It will certainly then be beneficial to poſterity, if there can be a rule eſtabliſhed, by which original ſurveys may be made in ſuch a manner as to render it eaſy, at any future time, to aſcertain the lines and boundaries of ſuch ſurveys with exactneſs. I therefore with due ſubmiſſion, offer it to legiſlative conſideration, whether that good purpoſe may not be effected by obliging all ſurveyors for the future, to make their ſurveys according to the true meridian of the world, which is invariably the ſame at all times; and not by the magnetic meridian, which is continually fluctuating. Such a regulation, in my opinion, might take place without much difficulty, as the true meridian is eaſily found, and the compaſs as eaſily corrected by it. It is true ſuch compaſs muſt be frequently corrected, perhaps once in two or three years; but this ſmall inconveniency will effect no perſon, but the ſurveyor, and his fees are already equivalent to that additional trouble. If this hint ſhould produce any thing of public utility, it will anſwer my real deſign; if not I can only aſk pardon for taking up ſo much of your paper. T. M

Directions for INOCULATION, by THOMAS DIMSDALE, M.D.

TO reduce the patient, if in high health, to a low and more ſecure ſtate; to ſtrengthen the conſtitution, if too low; to correct what appears vitiated; and to clear the ſtomach and bowels, as much as may be, from all crudities and their effects.

PREPARATION.

Thoſe of the firſt claſs to abſtain from animal food, ſpices, and fermented liquors, except ſmall beer, for the ſpace of ten days. During this time to take three doſes of the following medicine.

PREPARATIVE POWDERS.

Take eight grains of calomel, the ſame quantity of the compound powder of crabs-claws, and one eighth part of a grain of tartar emetic: Make into powder.

N. B. This is a doſe for a perſon in health, and of a robuſt conſtitution, and muſt be varied according to the age, ſtrength, and habit of the patient.

The manner of giving the infection.

A little of the variolous matter to be taken from the place of inſertion, if the ſubject is under inoculation, or from a ripe puſtule, if in a natural way, on the point of a lancet; ſo that both ſides of the point may be moiſtened.

With this lancet make inciſion in the arm, deep enough to paſs through the ſcarf ſkin, and juſt to touch the ſkin itſelf; the length as ſhort as poſſible, not more than the eighth of an inch. Open this little wound with the finger and thumb, and moiſten the inciſion with the matter, by gently touching it with the flat ſide of the infected lancet.

This operation is uſually performed in both arms, or in two places in one arm, a little diſtant from each other.

N. B. No plaiſter, bandage, or covering is applied.

DIRECTIONS AFTER INOCULATION.

On the ſecond day, at bed time, give the following pill.

Take of calomel, and compound powder of crabs-claws, of each three grains, with one tenth of a grain of emetic tartar.

As ſoon as the ſymptoms of the eruptive fever appear, the laſt mentioned mercurial pill to be given over night. In the morning give the following purge.

PURGE.

Take two ounces of the infuſion of ſena, half an ounce of manna, and two drams of the tincture of jalap.

N. B. This purge is nauſeous, and a doſe of jalap would anſwer the purpoſe as well.

Regular appearances about the wound.

Second day, if viewed with a Lens, there generally appears an orange coloured ſtain about the inciſion, and the ſurrounding ſkin ſeems to contract.

4th or 5th day, the part grows ſomewhat hard, itches, and appears ſlightly inflamed.

6th day. A pain and ſtiffneſs is generally felt in the arm-pit, which is deemed a favourable ſymptom.

7th day. On the 7th or 8th day, the eruptive fever begins. On viewing the inciſion with a glaſs, it then appears ſurrounded with a vaſt number of ſmall confluent puſtules.

10th day. A circular or oval efflorescence is diſcovered, about the ſize of a ſhilling, but ſometimes much larger. It accompanies the eruption, and may be deemed a ſignal that all danger is over.

When the appearances are thus regular, the diſeaſe is generally mild. If they ſeem tardy in their progreſs, it is neceſſary to accelerate the eruption by a more frequent repetition of mercurial and purgative medicines. The doctor aſſures us that evacuations promote the inflammation, and that the earlier the eruption, the milder is the diſorder, contrary to what happens in the natural way.

After the ERUPTION.

As ſoon as the ſymptoms of the eruptive fever appear, and the purging medicine has operated, the patient is ordered to keep abroad in the open air, and to quench his thirſt with cold water, taking care not to ſtand ſtill, but to walk about moderately.

PHILADELPHIA, November 9.

Captain Peele, from Liſbon, informs, that on the 25th of September, in Lat. 36: 34, Long. 15: 36, he fell in with three Sallee men of war, of 32 guns each, who ordered him to hoiſt out his boat, and come on board them, which he did, and after producing his Mediterranean paſs, they detained him four hours, and then ordered him to proceed on his voyage. The next morning he ſaw a ſail to windward, which immediately bore down for him, and came up with him about noon, when they fired a gun, hoiſted a red flag, and ordered him on board; that on his ſhewing his paſs, the Captain ordered him under a guard of 18 men, while they went on board his brig, plundered his cabbin of all his ſtores and neceſſaries, took away his books and inſtruments, ſhirts, wearing apparel, and ſeveral things of value, ſtruck his Mate ſeveral times, and uſed all his people very ill, threatening to ſtab them if they did not open their cheſts, that they might take what they pleaſed; that one of their ſlaves told him, while he was on board, the ſhip belonged to the Emperor of Morocco; that they had lately ſailed from Novo Sallee on a cruize, had taken ſeveral Spaniſh ſhips, and plundered a great many others. They detained him till evening, and then ordered him on board his own veſſel.

By Captain May, from Liſbon, we are informed, that a fleet of 30 ſail of Ruſſian men of war of the line, joined by 10 ſail of Daniſh men of war, were going from the Baltick up the Mediterranean, againſt the Algerines, who had declared war againſt the Danes. He further informs, that the above account was brought to Liſbon by the Lieutanant of a Daniſh man of war, and that they were all in the ſound on the 10th of Auguſt. On the 26th of September, two days after he left Liſbon, he fell in with 5 or 6 ſail of Algerines, one of them a 2 deck ſhip, who fired ſeveral ſhot, and brought him to; after detaining him ſome time, two veſſels hove in ſight, which they took to be Engliſh frigates, when they ſuffered him to proceed on his voyage, having firſt taken away ſome of his compaſſes, and inſtruments. At the time he left them, he ſaw two zebecks bring a ſnow to, but does not know who ſhe was.

WILLIAMSBURG, November 30.

Extracts from the ſpeech of his Excellency WILLIAM TRYON, Eſq; Governor of North-Carolina, at the opening of the ſeſſion of Aſſembly, in Newbern.

Gentlemen of his Majeſty's Honorable Council, Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the Houſe of Aſſembly,

YOUR public funds demand [illegible] examination than they have ever fallen under, ſince the eſtabliſhment of the colony. The credit and conſideration of this province is growing up with the increaſe of its inhabitants, and it is become of the utmoſt conſequence, that a ſettlement of the public accounts ſhould be forthwith obtained, that a general ſtate of them might be made known to the country. As I had an opportunity this ſummer to procure information into the manner of keeping public accounts in a neighbouring colony, I purpoſe, in the courſe of this ſeſſion, to lay before you, for your deliberation, ſome obſervations and regulations on this head, which I with may aſſiſt to diſpel that cloud which has ever obſcured the public accounts of this province: The community will then chearfully pay the public levies, ſatisfied that they are fairly adjuſted and applied to the ſervices intended.

Honourable Gentlemen, and Gentlemen of the Houſe of Aſſembly,

The weighty concerns that will fall under your conſideration this ſeſſion, require all poſſible temper and moderation in the conduct of them. I have the happineſs to hope the intelligence I have lately received from home, will be very inſtrumental in preventing any interruption to the diſpatch of public buſineſs. I am authorized to inform you, notwithſtanding any inſinuations to the contrary, that his Majeſty's preſent adminiſtration have, at no time, entertained a deſign to propoſe to Parliament to lay any further taxes upon America, for the purpoſe of raiſing a revenue; and that it is their intention to propoſe, in the next ſeſſion of Parliament, to take off the duties upon glaſs, paper, and colours, upon conſideration of ſuch duties having been laid contrary to the true principles of commerce. Theſe, I am aſſured, have always been, and ſtill are, the ſentiments of his Majeſty's preſent Miniſters, and the principles by which their conduct, in reſpect to America, has been governed. I therefore rely on your prudence and candour, that you will give full credit to the late teſtimonies his Majeſty and his Parliament have afforded, of their attention and affection to the colonies, and this explanation of the meaſures of his Majeſty's ſervants. Such a confidence on your part, will tend to remove thoſe prejudices which have been excited by the miſrepreſentations of thoſe who are jealous of the proſperity of Great Britain and her colonies, and reeſtabliſh that cordiality and affection, upon which the glory and ſafety of the Britiſh empire depend.

NOVEMBER 10.

On Saturday laſt, his Excellency the Governor ſent a meſſage to the Houſe, deſiring their attendance on him in the Council Chamber: The Houſe accordingly waited on his Excellency, when he was pleaſed to addreſs them as follows:

Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the Houſe of Aſſembly,

UPON looking over the votes of your Houſe, I find ſome reſolves upon your journals; reſolves, that, after the aſſurances I had given you in my ſpeech, have ſapped the foundations of confidence and gratitude; have torn up by the roots every ſanguine hope I entertained, to render this province further ſervice, if, in truth, I have rendered it any, and made it my indiſpenſible duty to put an end to this ſeſſion; I ſhall therefore require your attendance on Monday next, when you will preſent to me ſuch bills as may be then prepared.

WILL. TRYON.

On Monday the Houſe waited on his Excellency in the Council Chamber, when he diſſolved the Aſſembly with the following ſpeech:

I MET this Aſſembly with a moſt ſincere diſpoſition to forward the public buſineſs of the country; and I make this public acknowledgment of my thanks to the Gentlemen of his Majeſty's Council, for the chearfulneſs they have ſhewn to co-operate with me; and my gratitude to the Houſe of Aſſembly for the honorable opinion they have declared in favour of my adminiſtration. You may be aſſured Gentlemen, that the interruption which has been given to the buſineſs of this ſeſſion, has not occaſioned more diſappointment to you, than the cauſe of it has occaſioned real affliction to me.

The plan I laid before you for the management of your public funds, if adopted by the legiſlature, and invariably purſued, (otherwiſe it will be inſufficient) will produce the happieſt effects to this country; and I will be bold to affirm, if ever carried in any future ſeſſion, into an act of the legiſlature, it will be acknowledged the moſt beneficial ſeſſion this colony ever experienced, tho' it ſhould be the only act paſſed in that ſeſſion. But this bleſſing is not to be obtained for the country, while the Treaſurers, late ſheriffs, and their ſureties, can command a majority in the Lower Houſe, and while a Treaſurer is ſuffered to abſent himſelf, and withhold his public accounts from the General Aſſembly, let the pretence of his abſence be ever ſo urgent. This morning I ſaw ſome public accounts of the Treaſurer for the Southern diſtrict. Thoſe accounts are ſo very irregular, and negligently kept, that the public muſt be abuſed, if an amendment is not made to the mode there purſued; but as I am told it is a method his predeceſſors followed, no cenſure can lay upon that Gentleman.

As my duty precedes every other conſideration, I do now diſſolve this Aſſembly, and this Aſſembly is accordingly diſſolved.

Mr. RIND,

The following extract of a letter from a merchant in Virginia to his correſpondent in London, deſerves to be publiſhed in conſpicuous characters.

"TRUE, the planters have entered into an aſſociation not to purchaſe a great variety of articles, which, were they to adhere ſtrictly to, would prove a fatal blow to commerce, and infallibly procure them redreſs. And though honour's the tie, many of them pay ſo little regard to that ſacred name, that they deal with us as uſual."——Would it not be advifable for thoſe who are diſpoſed to comply with the terms of the aſſociation, to procure copies thereof, as it would prevent their offending through ignorance? What an excellent nut would ſuch a piece of intelligence be to our enemies, and how contemptible an idea would it raiſe in the minds of our friends on the other ſide of the water! My hearty prayers, Mr. Rind, is, that we may unanimouſly concur in perfecting the great work ſo happily begun; and time, the nurſe of arts, will certainly point out to us the wiſdom of our reſolution. AN ASSOCIATOR.

This day JOHN BLAIR, jun. Eſq; was choſen Mayor of this city for the enſuing year.

On Friday laſt Thomas Brown (alias James Burk) from Henrico, John Garland, from Suſſex, and John Johnſton, from Fairfax, all for felony, were executed at the gallows, near this city, purſuant to their ſentence.

On Monday the 20th of November, Mrs. JUDITH GRIFFIN, daughter of Carter Burwell, Eſq; was ſnatched away by a ſudden and violent illneſs. She was the moſt affectionate and dutiful wife that ever bleſſed the marriage ſtate, as pious and devout a ſpirit as ever was received into Chriſtianity, and performed every ſocial call and duty in life with the greateſt pleaſure and ſweetneſs; the beſt of women and the beſt of wives.

"How lov'd, how good thou wert, avail'd thee not,
To whom related, or by whom begot;
Thy ſpace of duſt, below, remains of thee,
'Tis all thou art, 'tis all the beſt can be."

WILLIAM & MARY College, Nov. 27, 1769.

WHEREAS it has appeared to us, the President and Masters of William and Mary College, very necessary, in order to have the statutes of the said college carried into due execution, that the students and scholars should have their residence here during term-time, as prescribed by the statutes for this purpose; we have resolved, that for the future those terms, as far as in us lies, be exactly observed and complied with, and have therefore directed the same to be made public. We most earnestly recommend to parents and guardians, and request of them, to take particular care in the above respect, strictly to injoin the young Gentlemen to be present in the college at the commencement of each term, and to provide them with the certain means of being so, and not to give them their permission to retire, much less to send for them home again before each term's expiration. The statute providing for term-time, runs thus:—"Let there be three terms for opening the grammar and the Indian school. Let Hilary term begin the first Monday after Epiphany, and end on Saturday before Palm Sunday. Let Easter term begin on Monday after the first Sunday after Easter; and let it end in the eve of the Sunday before Whitsunday. Let Trinity term begin on Monday after Trinity Sunday; and end on the sixteenth day of December. Let the other schools observe the same terms; except only, that to the Philosophy and Divinity schools, we grant vacation from St. James's day to St. Luke's."

By order of the society,

3 EMMANUEL JONES, Clerk.

THE creditors of Benjamin Grymes are desired to meet at John Carter's, in the back street, Williamsburg, on Thursday the 14th of December, at six o'clock in the evening, to settle matters of importance relative to the estate made over to them, which renders their attendance very necessary. As there have been several disappointments, which have been prejudicial to the estate, owing to base reports, it is necessary to say, that as much has been raised within the last two years as the slaves and what land is left would have sold for, and that it may reasonably be expected as much may be raised next year, as has been the last two, as will appear by the accounts, which will be then ready to lay before the creditors. The report of sundry persons, who live in or near the town of Fredericksburg, having agreed with Col. William Champe for the works, is too true, but as the works were engaged, prior to that agreement, by Col. Champe, for the benefit of the creditors, there is no doubt but on the agreement being punctually complied with next April, the works will be secured, and the stock provided in consequence of the agreement, turned into cash, for the benefit of the estate.

To be SOLD, on the 5*th day of* February next, at Fredericksburg,

NEAR 2000 acres of LAND, about 14 miles from Fredericksburg, lying about 3 miles on Mattapony river, on the north side thereof, which was formerly the property of Benjamin Grymes. The land will be sold in lots, or otherwise, as suits the purchasers, and reasonable credit given, if required. Mr. Grymes will shew the land to any person inclinable to purchase it.
